

Zuitt Coding Bootcamp

Does coding work for me?

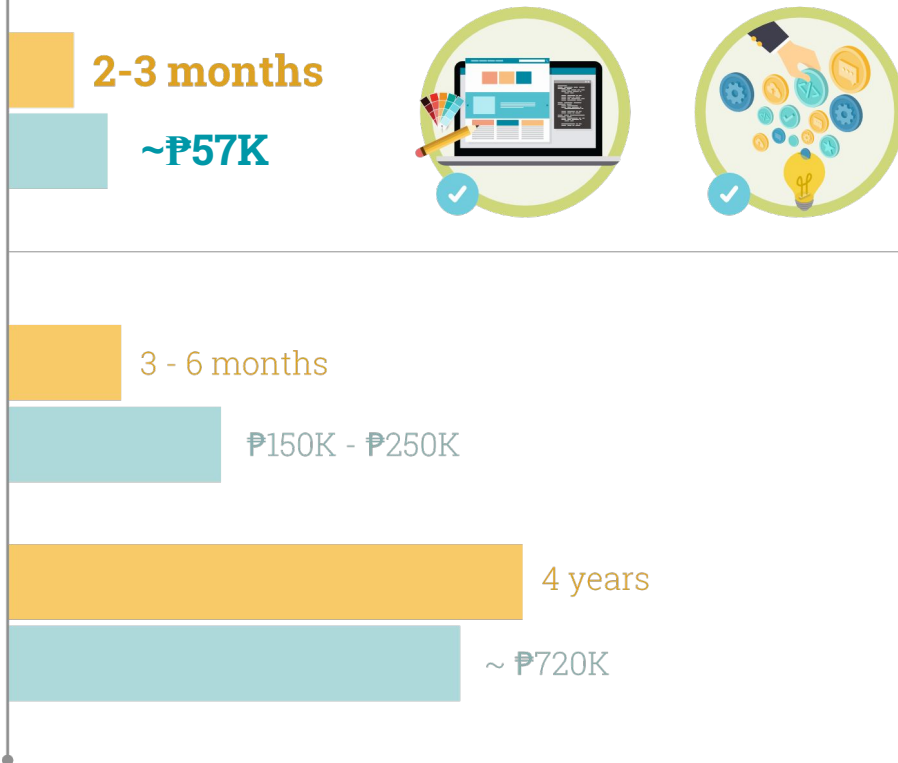

Developers Enjoy Twice More Steeper Salary Curve

Notes: Developer salary is estimated by Zuitt using its discussion with their clients and the Jobstreet data in Sep 2022. Mechanical engineer. The other salary is computed using PayScale data, with Manila as location, Bachelor as Degree, Company as Employer, as of May 2018

Source: Jobstreet, Zuitt, PayScale.com

Is ~₱57K Too Expensive?

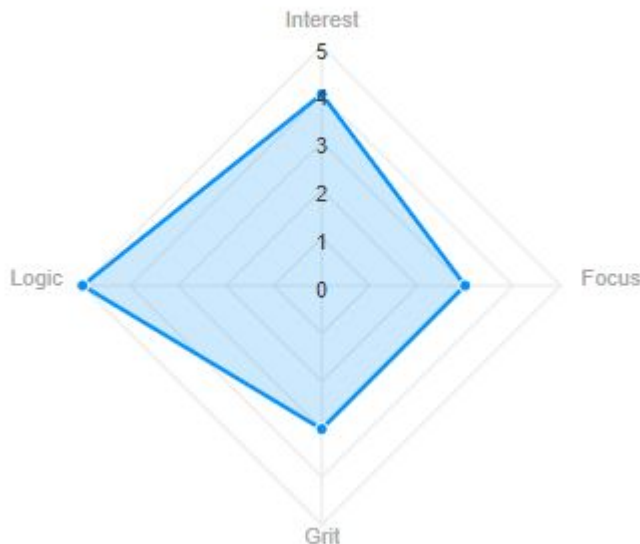

Bring a friend and get incentive for the both of you:

Group Incentive (for both of referral and referrer)
2 enrollees	Get P2,000 off each
3 enrollees	Get P2,500 off each
4 or more enrollees	Get P3,000 off each

- Applicable for January Batch bootcampers only, regardless of the schedule (full-time or part-time) chosen by each group member.
 - Discount amounts will vary on the number of successful applicants who will complete the training
- Referrer and referral/s should be part of one group to be eligible for the incentive.

Recommendation Result

Assesment Result : 92/100

Recommendation:

- ☒ Recommended for developer career
 - ☒ 4,200 Discount (One week from today)
 - ☒ "Study Now, Pay Later" available for regular bootcamp
- ☐ Call your attention for a developer career
- ☐ Not Recommended for a developer career

Disclaimer:

- Note that an developer career values continuous practice and learning more than credentials and certifications
- Zuitt also observes that employers have varying criteria of acceptance with regard to which developer skills is more important.
- While we base it on historical information available to us with our experience with thousands of students, Zuitt does not warrant or make any representations regarding this assessment, as well as its use, validity and reliability.
- In case of results as "Not recommended", we encourage to seek second opinion. Unmatch with career starting from Zuitt does not necessarily means unmatch with the one from the other institution.
- The "Study Now, Pay Later" option will be offered subject to certain conditions.